

Well, she takes a small sip of tea from each of the seven little mugs. She takes a small spoonful of soup from each of the seven little bowls and a small piece of meat and vegetables from each of the seven little plates.

'Mmmmmm,' says Snow White. 'This dinner is very tasty.' Snow White looks around the room. It is very untidy. 'Look at that,' says Snow White, 'seven little people live here and the kitchen is very untidy! I shall clean the kitchen to say thank you for the food I have eaten.'

So, Snow White cleans the kitchen. She sweeps the floor, she washes the dishes and she polishes the cupboards. The kitchen is very clean now. It is dark outside and Snow White is very tired.

'Humm,' Snow White sighs, 'I am so tired now. I want to sleep,' she says.

Do you know what Snow White does next? No? Well, she climbs the stairs. At the top of the stairs there is a bedroom. In the bedroom Snow White counts the beds. How many do you think she sees? One, two, three, four, five, six, seven. Yes! Snow White sees seven little beds!

'Oh my,' says Snow White, 'seven little people live here, and their beds are very untidy! I shall make the beds to say thank you for all the food I have eaten.' Snow White makes the beds.

Now Snow White is very, very tired. 'Humm,' Snow White sighs. 'I am very, very tired,' she says. She falls asleep on one of the seven little beds.

One,

seven.

two,

six,

three,

five,

four,

